

Cepsa integrates PayPay to its mobile refuelling app

Cepsa Pay users, the free app developed by Cepsa to pay to refuel at its network of service stations, now have another advantage with the integration of the PayPal payment method.

Due to the agreement reached by both companies, users can now link their PayPal account to this first of a kind Cepsa app that it launched in 2015 to offer a quicker, more comfortable, and safer way to refuel.

“The integration of our platform into Cepsa Pay makes total sense, given its unique and pioneering character that allows users to pay to refuel without leaving their car,” said Raimundo Sala, General Manager of PayPal for Spain and Portugal.

According to Cepsa, users with the app manage to considerably reduce the time spent refueling and pay in an easy way, as safe as paying at the counter.

“It is an innovative initiative, that is safe, user friendly, and that is designed to meet the needs of our customers. The collaboration with PayPal is a further sign of Cepsa’s commitment to the development of customer experience and to the safety of our operations, installations, customers, and suppliers,” said Cepsa’s Marketing Director, Joaquín Abril-Martorell.

Cepsa currently has more than 1,700 service stations in Spain and Portugal.
