

SloanLED bets on energy efficiency with membership of Alliance to Save Energy

SloanLED has become an associate member of the Alliance to Save Energy, a group that looks to advance energy efficiency policy.

The Alliance to Save Energy is a nonprofit organization with nearly 40 years of experience connecting diverse businesses, nonprofit organizations, and government entities that share in the belief that energy efficiency builds a healthier economy, a cleaner environment, and energy security.

“Joining the Alliance to Save Energy is a natural fit for SloanLED, we’ve been at the forefront of providing environmentally friendly LED light solutions for decades,” said Ervin Cash, President & CEO of SloanLED and Alliance board member.

Through this partnership SloanLED looks to advance energy efficiency policy, connect with government officials and industry professionals, and access valuable energy efficiency resources, according to the LED technology company.