

Ghana: Vivo Energy to rebrand 28 Modex stations as Shell

Fuel retailer Vivo Energy Ghana Limited has signed an agreement with Modex Oil Company Limited to operate all Modex gas stations under the Shell brand.

Twenty-eight Modex fuel stations have been rebranded as Shell, bringing the total number of sites operating under the international flag in Ghana to 207, reports StarrFM Online.

“Vivo Energy has the vision of becoming Africa’s most respected energy business. The operation of Modex service stations, which share similar values to those of Vivo Energy, is a step in the right direction to us achieving this vision,” said Chief Executive Officer of Vivo Energy Group, Christian Chammas.

Vivo Energy is the company that distributes and markets Shell-branded products and services in Ghana. The company, which is also present in a number of other African countries, is trying to increase its market share and network size.