

Tank Storage Germany 2016 enjoyed its most successful show yet

With many senior attendants, buyers conducting business on the show floor, and an array of leading suppliers from Germany and beyond, the show enjoyed its most successful edition yet, according to organizers.

The conference and exhibition, which took place at The Hamburg Messe on 16 & 17 November, reported a record number of senior level tank storage professionals in attendance. These included terminal managers, CEOs, managing directors, senior engineers and investors from major oil companies.

“For us at Implico this event is another good opportunity to meet face to face with our customers and partner companies here in our hometown of Hamburg. It is always a great chance to get new inspiring ideas for our terminal automation software,” said Claus Polens, Head of OpenTAS Consulting at Implico Group.

Many of the suppliers exhibiting at the show used the event to launch new products to the German bulk liquid storage sector.

“The level of quality visitor we attracted created a fantastic buzz around the show, which we are obviously thrilled about,” concluded Nick Powell, Event Director of the Easyfairs’ StocExpo and Tank Storage Events Portfolio.
