

LPG West Africa 2019

With an estimated population of about 367 million, West Africa is the biggest population center in Africa. However, more than 80% of the population still relies on biomass for cooking. According to figures from Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), the four major countries of Nigeria, Ghana, Senegal and Ivory Coast account for more than 85% of the total LPG consumption of 1.2 million tonnes consumed in the region.

With support and endorsement from the World LPG Association and working closely with various key LPG stakeholders in the region, LPG West Africa is a regional conference and exhibition that aims to be an international platform for regional stakeholders to meet, network and shares idea with their international counterparts.
