

13th ICIS Asian Base Oils & Lubricants Conference

Countdown to 2020: Mitigating volatility and increasing efficiencies across the region

For thirteen years, the ICIS Asian Base Oils & Lubricants Conference has been the leading market-focussed conference for the Asian region.

With unrivalled content and unparalleled networking, this meeting played host, in 2018, to over 300 senior attendees.

Taking place 25-27 June 2019 in Singapore, this year's event will once again provide high-level content for those looking to hear about the direction of the Asian base oils, lubricants and transportation markets, as well as business-critical networking for those looking to foster existing relationships and build new ones across the continent.

Key topics for 2019 include:

- Shifting gears: How the implementation of Euro VI equivalents is progressing across Asia
- How the growing economy of Indonesia is reflected in its lubricant business
- Early implementation of IMO 2020 in Asia
- Group II: Impact of additional capacities globally on Asia
- What is the impact of the global crude price crash on the lubricants industry in Asia?
