

23rd ICIS World Base Oils & Lubricants Conference

Innovative technologies and industry disruptors: What do they mean for the lubricants business?

For over two decades, the ICIS World Base Oils & Lubricants Conference has been the pinnacle conference within the industry's calendar.

With unrivalled content and unparalleled networking, the ICIS flagship meeting played host, in 2018, to over 680 senior attendees – the highest number of attendees to date. Other highlights include the introduction of the Associates Network, a sponsored dinner as well as a full value chain representation from across the globe.

Taking place 18-22 February 2019, once again at the Park Plaza Westminster Bridge Hotel in London, the 23rd edition offers a full 5 days of in-depth information. This includes:

- Two base oils training courses to expand your knowledge about the base oils business
- A morning seminar around sanctions and scenario planning and two afternoon workshops on Brexit and China
- A two-day conference around innovative technologies and industry disruptors and how they affect the base oils & lubricants market
- A gala reception exclusively for conference attendees
- And a breakfast briefing addressing innovations in marketing to increase lubricant sales

Speakers will include representatives of Chevron, ExxonMobil Fuels & Lubricants, Lubrizol, Neste, Shell and many more, and will discuss key industry topics such as:

- State of Address: Big Oil perspective on the energy outlook

- The future of Group II in Europe: New capacities and evolving specifications
- Impact of changes in vehicle ownership and user patterns on base oil and lubricant demand
- Getting approval: Evolving base oil interchange guidelines and tests
- OEM Perspective: How are innovations in base oils affecting future automotive design considerations?
