

Certas Energy invests £2 million in new fuel depot in Holton Heath

Certas Energy, the UK's leading independent distributor of fuels and lubricants, is opening a new depot in Holton Heath in February.

The development follows a £2 million investment to turn a former truck parking location for Certas in the Laydown Area, into a large fuel storage depot; supplying fuels, heating oil, lubricants, AdBlue and fuel cards.

With over eight delivery tankers to be based at the site, the Holton Heath depot will have capacity to distribute to homes and businesses; including farms, construction sites, schools and haulage companies, over a large area.

"The Holton Heath site has undergone a real transformation since the start of the project and offers excellent access to local areas," said Steve Gettings, Regional Director for South West at Certas Energy.

The new Holton Heath site will join Certas Energy's network of 150 fuel depots across the UK and support the company's regional presence in the South West with dependable local deliveries.
