

Spain: AVIA strengthens its diesel distribution network in Extremadura

The fuelling company has acquired a gas centre in Malpartida de Plasencia.

Oil company AVIA has acquired a gas centre in the town of Malpartida de Plasencia in the Western region of Caceres. The asset will reinforce its gas oil supply network for individuals and companies as well as agricultural gas oil.

The operator has another warehouse in Badajoz. It is also an official supplier for the Junta de Extremadura and the Badajoz town hall.

This acquisition is part of the company's strategic plan to become the fifth largest oil operator in Spain.