

Leighton O'Brien appoints Operations Manager (Europe & Africa)

Leighton O'Brien has announced the promotion of Mahir Hodzic to Operations Manager (Europe and Africa). The appointment looks to accelerate growth of global field technologies operations.

Formerly Business Development Engineer (Asia Pacific), Hodzic will lead the commercial, business development and engineering functions of Leighton O'Brien's growing European and African field technologies business including precision tank integrity testing, fuel restoration and tank cleaning.

"Like other global markets, Europe and Africa have moved to modern fuel formulations which is driving the need for best in class fuel system testing and cleaning technologies for both optimum risk management and maximum asset utilisation," Jason Park, Leighton O'Brien General Manager for Distributors.

The role will involve executing a growth-focused commercial strategy to expand testing and cleaning in new markets and maximise return on investment through Leighton O'Brien's licensed service partners and customers.
