

Ireland: New fuel station to be built in Rathcormarc, Cork

The site will replace the former EMO O'Regal filling station.

Planning permission has been granted for the development of new premises including the construction of a two-storey service station with a retail area, hot food delivery and food preparation, reports The Avondhu.

The site will comprise a canopy and 2 fuelling islands, 12 car parking spaces and 1 electric vehicle recharge point.

The permission for the development was granted on February 19 by Cork County Council.