

Marie Djordjian appointed as MD of Total Mexico

With the oil company granted seven new explorations blocks and looking to reach 400 branded stations by 2021, Marie Marie Djordjian, will take up the post of Managing Director.

Isabelle Gaildraud, Senior Vice President of the Americas and General Secretary of Total Marketing Services, announced that as of June 1, 2019, Marie Djordjian will take over from Alexandre Duret-Proux, who was appointed to other positions within the Group.

Djordjian has been working with Total for 19 years, serving in various positions both in the service station business and in M&A negotiations.

"I look forward to joining the Total Mexico team that has strategically strengthened the subsidiary in recent years, both for the expansion of our historic lubricants business and for the development of the new service station network," said Marie Djordjian.

Total Mexico partnered with Gasored in October 2017, and since then has developed a network of Total branded service stations located in Mexico City and the Central Valley, with a plan to have 400 branded gas stations by 2021.

Recently, the National Hydrocarbons Commission granted it seven exploration blocks located in the Gulf of Mexico, three of which will be operated by Total.
