

Follow the com-a-tec sponsored charity run across Europe to help children

The Donaulauf is a run across the 3,145 kilometres of the Danube River for the children's aid campaign Herzenssache e.V.

Communications agency com-a-tec, owner of PetrolPlaza, is sponsoring a 12-day run across the 3,145 kilometres of the Danube River for the children's aid campaign Herzenssache e.V.

Across 291 stages, the charity run takes participants from Donaueschingen (Germany) to Murighiol (Romania). As they make their way to the Black Sea, runners pass by cities such as Ulm, Ingolstadt, Vienna, Bratislava, Budapest, Belgrade and Tulcea, located in the Danube delta.

The net proceeds from donations for the run, organized by the Laufftreff Pföhren e.V., will go to Herzenssache, the children's aid campaign of SWR, SR and Sparda-Bank.

Herzenssache takes care of children and young people in Baden-Württemberg, Rhineland-Palatinate and Saarland. 'Protect, support and make strong' is their mantra. A matter of the heart helps where it is urgently needed, with the aim of ensuring that children and young people living in Southwest Germany have equal opportunities in the long term.

"As an agency that has been supporting companies from numerous countries in their international business for 25 years, we can identify ourselves with this ambitious running project for an open Europe. And the run from the source to the mouth is reminiscent of our agency's philosophy. To let an idea become reality over many stages, even if the way is sometimes very demanding - that's how we understand full service," according to com-a-tec.

The run started on June 7 in Donaueschingen. As they enter the last five days of the marathon, the runners are currently passing through Serbia. You can get live updates of the race here.
