

GO Car Wash names new Chairman

Under Bill Derwin's leadership, the company will continue to deploy its multi-pronged growth strategy focused on acquisitions, partnerships and new site build-outs.

The board of directors of GO Car Wash, the nation's newest express car wash platform, has named Bill Derwin chairman to lead the company during its "aggressive growth phase and beyond," according to GO Car Wash CEO, Darren Skarecky.

"I am honored to lead such a talented team of proven industry professionals," said Derwin. "With GO's dynamic team of industry professionals, we are well-positioned to grow rapidly throughout North America."

Derwin was chief executive officer of International Car Wash Group, headquartered in the United Kingdom and Denver, with global responsibility for the world's largest car wash company at over 900 sites in 15 countries.

From 2013 to 2016, he was Terminix International president, overseeing the $4.2 billion enterprise in 22 countries with more than 9,500 employees.

For 11 years before that, Derwin held various roles at United Technologies/Otis Elevator including Vice President, global field operations and area director, United Kingdom and Ireland.

With a Harvard MBA and a mechanical engineering degree from Stanford University, Derwin began his career in 1990 at The Boeing Co. and with McKinsey & Co.

Today, he is an independent director at Badger Daylighting, a publicly-traded, premier soil excavation company based in Calgary, Alberta.
