

United Supermarkets elects Phillips 66 brand for fuel stations

The locations will begin offering Phillips 66 fuel in the fourth quarter of 2019.

United Supermarkets, the premier grocery store chain of West Texas, announced that 25 of its United Express retail fuel stations will now offer Phillips 66 branded fuel.

The United Express stations, located primarily in the Amarillo and Lubbock regions, will begin offering Phillips 66 branded fuel during the fourth quarter of 2019.

“Our partnership with Phillips 66 allows us to continue to bring a high-quality fuel product at a competitive price to our communities. Each of our companies has more than 100 years invested in our communities, so it seems like a natural fit, and a great benefit for our Guests,” stated Robert Taylor, chief executive officer of the United Supermarket Family of stores.

The United Family currently operates 94 stores under five unique banners.
