

Underground storage tank explodes in Saudi Arabia

Video shows how people run from the explosion as they fuel their vehicles.

A Naft petrol station in Saudi Arabia erupted in flames when the underground storage tanks suddenly exploded. Despite seeing people near the explosion no injuries were reported.

CCTV footage shows how the manholes are blown off and flames fly up in the air.

The encircling street then buckles and is blasted into the air with the concrete island as clients flee.