

Argentina: AXION energy will install repair shops in service stations

AXION energy and Castrol have signed an agreement with Robert Bosch for the installation of light duty repair shops in their fuel stations in Argentina.

Bosch Car Service Express will be installed in the lubrication areas of AXION energy gas stations, reports surtidores.com.ar. The repair shops will offer a wide range of services for vehicle maintenance based on Castrol and Bosch products.

The first Bosch Car Service Express was installed in a fuel station located in the Belgrano neighborhood, Buenos Aires, being the first express repair shop inaugurated in Latin America. The companies aim to expand the project nationwide by 2020.

"This project aims to make it easier for users to access fast services without losing the quality and prestige that identify us," said Bosch Automotive Aftermarket Country Manager Sergio L'Estrange.

"We are proud to have closed this agreement that allows us to continue enhancing the offer in our service stations, providing not only the best quality in Castrol fuels and lubricants, but also taking care of our customers' cars with a quality service performed by trained specialists," commented AXION energy general manager Jorge Bastos.
