ASIS rolls out prepayment self-service system in Ghana

ASIS continues to develop technologies for changing business and social life due to the COVID-19 outbreak.

The APPOS (ASIS Petech POS system) Self Service application started to be used for the first time in Ghana due to the intense demands from Africa and the Turkic Republics. APPOS has been developed according to ASIS' international experience and the needs of its regional customers.

APPOS works as follows: when customers want to buy fuel, they approach the pump and make a payment (cash or card payment) at the market. The attendant activates the pump remotely according to amount paid, allowing customers to refill their own tank.

APPOS application, which is called Prepaid Self-service system, started to be used in Ghana after Nigeria, Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan. APPOS is offered as a practical solution for contactless filling and applications that have come to agenda because of COVID-19.
