USA: Sheetz, Grubhub to provide delivery from 390 stores

The c-store chain partners with the food-ordering platform Grubhub to offer customers contact-free delivery services to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

Sheetz and Grubhub announced this week a new partnership for providing delivery services from 390 Sheetz convenience stores across six states. Through Grubhub's online and mobile food-ordering platform, customers will be able to order from a variety of Sheetz's signature menu items and coffees and have it delivered.

"Grubhub delivery allows Sheetz to continue to give customers what they want, when they want it but from the safety and comfort of their homes," Travis Sheetz, president & COO of Sheetz Inc., said in a press release. "We will continue to innovate to serve our customers in these uncertain times as we all join together to prevent the spread of COVID-19."

Grubhub offers customers a contact-free delivery at checkout. Drivers can call and/or text the customers when they arrive and drop off their orders on the doorstep, in the lobby or in another area designated by the customer.

Sheetz Inc. is a family-owned and operated convenience store chain headquartered in Altoona. It operates stores across Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Ohio and North Carolina.
