

Argentina: AXION Energy expands home delivery from its gas stations

The agreement signed with Glovo and Pedidos Ya is already in place in 51 'Spot! Market' convenience stores.

AXION Energy has extended its agreement with Glovo and Pedidos Ya for home delivery up to 3 km around its service stations. The agreement is currently active at 51 'Spot! Market' convenience stores located at AXION service stations, although the number of participating stores is expected to increase in the coming weeks.

The oil company is thus strengthening its strategy to increase sales at its convenience stores, while adding essential products and cleaning supplies.

"As a result of the social isolation imposed by the pandemic, in many cases doing the daily shopping has become a long process and sometimes even impossible for many people. This is why we thought of offering this service," points out Marina Chávez, Spot brand manager.

"The sales we generate through the delivery application are not as high as those we have with the gas station fully operational. But in accordance with the guidelines, prevention measures and recommendations of the National Ministry of Health, we adopted this service to contribute to the facilitation of the social isolation imposed by the government and to provide a solution for many people who cannot leave their homes, notes the Spot brand manager.
