

Tanknology acquires Compliance Testing and Technology

The U.S. company acquires a provider of aboveground storage tank and underground storage tank compliance services.

Tanknology Inc., provider of environmental compliance testing, inspection services and fuel quality solutions has announced the acquisition of Compliance Testing and Technology, Inc. (CT&T).

CT&T is a Cedarburg, Wisconsin-based provider of aboveground storage tank (AST) and underground storage tank (UST) compliance services.

"The transaction is expected to provide significant benefits to both companies' customer base by adding highly skilled employees, expanding geographic capacity and offering additional proprietary testing and inspection services. CT&T shares in our commitment to a customer-centric culture and delivery of a highest quality of service," said Allen Porter, Tanknology President and CEO.

"Compliance Testing and Technology is excited to be joining Tanknology," said Greg Goeks, President of CT&T. "Our customers will benefit from our ability to integrate Tanknology's industry-leading technologies, systems and processes. By joining Tanknology, CT&T will enhance our capacity for delivery of service and be able to offer our customers additional services and resources. As a part of Tanknology our employees will have greater depth and breadth of support and increased opportunities."