

France: ENGIE Solutions opens new bioCNG station near Le Mans

ENGIE Solutions operates 150 CNG filling stations in France including around 50 public stations.

Engie Solutions continues to expand its network of gas filling stations in France with the opening of a new (bio)CNG location in Allonnes, Sarthe department, reports Gaz-Mobilité.

Located south-west of Le Mans, the Allonnes facility features four refuelling tracks for CNG and bio-CNG supply. The station will open 24 hours a day and serve all types of natural gas vehicles.

Engie's newest gas filling station is for the moment only accessible with the operator's cards. The location will soon be open to the general public and enable payments by credit card.

Formerly GNVERT, ENGIE Solutions operates 150 CNG filling stations in France, including around 50 publicly accessible locations.
