

Spain: Petrem to open its second natural gas station in Girona

Petrem invests €1.4 million to upgrade its sites in the province of Girona with EV charging points and natural gas refuelling options.

Petrem, a fuel supplier from Catalonia's Girona, will expand the refueling infrastructure for natural gas vehicles in the province of Girona with the opening of a new gas fuelling station in an area near the city of Girona, reports local media Diari de Girona.

The new station will open later this year and will become Petrem's second gas filling station in the province of Girona, along with its active gas site in the town of Figueres.

The opening of this new location is part of a 1.4 million euros investment that Petrem is undertaking to upgrade its facilities with charging points for electric vehicles and for the refuelling of natural gas.

Last summer, Petrem dedicated 800,000 euros to open a gas filling station in the town of Santa Llogaia d'Àlguema, reports Diari de Girona.

According to Gasnam, an association that promotes the use of natural and renewable gas for mobility in Spain, the province of Girona currently has four liquefied natural gas (LNG) stations and five compressed natural gas (CNG) stations. Three out of the four LNG stations also offer CNG.
