

Tesla pilots car wash services at its Supercharger stations

Tesla owners may soon be able to drive away from a Supercharger station with their vehicle charged up and completely clean, as the company considers introducing car wash services.

Instead of setting up its own cleaning services for Tesla cars, the California-based company wants to team up with Eco Green Auto Clean, a car wash company that uses less than one cup of water to clean a whole car.

The partnership between the two companies is currently being tested with a pilot program at the Fremont Factory Supercharger in California, reports Electrek.

According to the publication, the service provided by Eco Green Auto Clean would be subscription-based and would initially come at a high cost for users.
