

Invenco partners with Tatsuno to deliver self-service payments at the pump

New Zealand based self-service payments innovator, Invenco Group, has extended its global partner count to eleven in forming an OEM partnership to supply Outdoor Payment Terminals to Tatsuno Corporation.

Global self-service payment technology leader, Invenco Group Ltd, has formed an OEM partnership with Tokyo headquartered, Japanese fuel pump manufacturers, Tatsuno Corporation, which have a 60% market share in Japan and exports to over 75 countries.

Under the OEM partnership Tatsuno will access Invenco's Outdoor Payment Terminal technology to deliver self-service payments to Tatsuno pumps. It is Invenco's eleventh global partner deal and sees the New Zealand based company further extend its reach across the Asia-Pacific region.

"We are very glad to be working with Invenco. Invenco has attractive products, experienced engineers and is growing very fast," says Shin Hashimoto, Tatsuno's Manager of International Marketing.

Tatsuno is recognized for its innovation including Japan's first petrol service station (SS) POS system, level gauges for underground tank inventory management systems and petrol depot related equipment.
