

Applegreen gets green light to acquire Dublin fuel terminal

Irish fuel retailer Applegreen has been granted permission to acquire a 50% stake in a Dublin fuel terminal for €15.7 million.

The approval from the Competition and Consumer Protection Commission allows Applegreen to acquire Esso Ireland's share in the fuel terminal located in Dublin's port, reports RTE.

Applegreen currently operates in more than 200 locations, including 133 petrol stations in the Republic of Ireland and over 60 in the UK.

The acquisition, expected to be completed by mid-July, will allow Applegreen to import fuel directly from refineries and have an efficient supply chain.
