

StocExpo Europe reports industry optimism

StocExpo Europe's conference and exhibition successfully came to a close in Ahoy, Rotterdam last week after a busy and informative three days.

Attracting an international audience from over 70 countries worldwide, the event welcomed thousands of high level decision makers to the Ahoy, Rotterdam to explore the challenges and opportunities presented in what is now a highly dynamic market.

The conference programme delivered by leading experts covered subjects including terminal process safety, market analysis and growth opportunities, the latest industry regulations, the future of terminals and technical & operational excellence.

"StocExpo Europe has enjoyed another successful year yet again and it's been great to see so many new initiatives come to life that were so well received, including the late-night opening, start-up zone and the Innovation in Storage programme led by EEMUA and iTanks," said Nick Powell, StocExpo & Tank Storage Divisional Director.

StocExpo Europe will be returning to Ahoy, Rotterdam next year from 26-28 March 2019. The next tank storage event takes place in Asia, Singapore on the 26 & 27th September 2018.