

Shell's Network Fuel Card adds 300 sites in Belgium

The European fuel card will now be used at Lukoil and Dats 24 stations across Belgium.

Shell has announced that its Network Fuel Card (NFC) has added a total 304 service stations in Belgium.

Users of Shell's NFC card, aimed at professionals and self-employed people, will soon be able to use 1,500 filling stations of Shell, Q8, Esso, Lukoil and Dats 24 throughout Belgium.

"This makes us the largest network of stations with quality fuel, despite the Withdrawal of Total from the NFC network on January 1, 2019," said Shell in a press release.

The global oil company also discusses the Station Finder app, which allows users to quickly locate the nearest station and also gives the NFC card access to 22,000 stations from Shell and partners in Europe as well as 3,600 public electric charging stations in Belgium and 72,000 in Europe.
