The importance given to team coordination and team work, each of which consists of experts in the field, brings success and customer satisfaction. The first task is in the design team who listens to the customer and tries to reflect it in the most accurate way. The designs of the design team, which challenge the imagination, are turned into a production project through the Engineering team. The Process and Product Development team that comes into play checks the functionality, statics, ergonomics and aesthetics of the design by prototyping. At all stages of the process, the dialogue with the customer continues through the relevant project coordinator on the sale. The main goal of coordinated teamwork is to ensure customer satisfaction. The works whose project and prototype have been completed are transferred to production by the Project Coordinator in the sales team. After the material requirement planning, production, shipment and assembly planning of the work, production starts. In production, raw materials that are approved to be of the desired quality are used by making entry control. The works completed and coordinated by the Manufacturing Tracking Engineers in each department are delivered to the shipment and assembly department. It provides assembly services both at home and abroad through the assembly teams that are equipped with state-of-the-art equipment and allocated vehicles suitable for assembly.
